Programs you will support include:

Jazz for Curious Listeners

This weekly class for lay audiences presents the background, historical and musical context of jazz to deepen participants' knowledge of this music and its relationship to world culture.

Harlem Speaks

Harlem Speaks is a biweekly interview series sharing the experiences of movers and shakers for whom jazz remains a vital inspiration.

Jazz for Curious Readers

This monthly interview series focuses on artists who create with the written word.

Classroom Education Programs

A variety of in-school programs brings jazz to students through live performances and discussions.

Please contact the museum for information on these and additional programs you can support on an individual basis.

Jazz is Now!

Young artists from all genres share their passion for jazz and how it feeds their contemporary work.

Putting the National in NJMH The Louis Armstrong/Danny Kaye Series:

Using the partnership of these two beloved icons as a starting point for jazz's inherent joy, we establish residencies in 50 states at the university, middle school and community level.
